THIRTY UNION LEADERS MEET TO AVERT FALL

Bringing About Unity of Action One Task Facing Officials in Session

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
CHICAGO, July 21.—Virtually every point of the Chicago building trades situation which the thirty or more international union presidents are here to clear up is a theoretical red-hot poker.

It was apparent at the Cincinnati convention of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor, at which the international presidents were ordered to Chicago to straighten out tangles which have involved the unions with the citizens' committee, that the big union leaders did not care for the job. It was just as apparent here today when the first real session commenced. Each and everyone of them is afraid of being burned about the conditions being the most delicate they have ever been called upon to face, it is said.

First of all to be considered is the preservation of the Chicago building trades council itself, according to one well-informed leader. That body is near the breaking point by reason of the lack of unity among its organizations. Heretofore the international presidents have urged acceptance of the arbitration awards as paramount and it is expected they will follow that policy here, it is possible.

BIG TASK AHEAD

But their task is not merely bringing about unity of action among the unions. It also is to find some manner in which those unions "outlawed" by the citizens' committee and others, such as the carpenters, which did not participate in the Landis arbitration proceedings, may be brought back into a working relationship with the citizens' committee contractors.

The session, which opened today at the Bridge House and which is presided over by John Donlin of the building trades department, plans first to hear the union side and demand new agreements from the contractors. The international presidents may work out a solution, but they believe they can bring the carpenters, the painters and the sheet-metal workers into a position in which they can accept the Landis award.

Death claimed the victim of an alleged labor slugging this morning at the Bridge House, 32 years old, a sheet-metal worker under the Landis award, who was slugged and received a fractured skull Tuesday, died at Alexian Brothers' Hospital.

Rogers Park police, after hearing the testimony of witnesses, declared that the man who was slugged was the victim of men who sought to punish him for working at the reduced wage scale.

ENGLAND READY TO SHIP COAL TO END STRIKE

Quarter Million Tons Are Available at Once

Prepared to Begin Shipments to America

British Operators Consider Capacity Production

BY HENRY WALES
(BY CABLE-EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
LONDON, July 21.—A quarter of a million tons of coal are available in England for immediate shipment to the United States as soon as the American supplies are exhausted as a result of the strike.

English coal production could be ready to permit the shipment of 200,000 tons weekly if necessary as not all the pits are working full time now.

There are plenty of bottoms available to transport enormous supplies of coal, and owing to the stagnation in the shipping business it is not expected the rates would be increased.

This information, requested by American interests, was supplied today by Sir John Cornwell, a member of Parliament and the principal coal baron of England, after a careful estimate of the situation and a forecast of the immediate future.

"Normally no coal is shipped to the United States," said Sir John, "but the British operators are ready to export to the fullest capacity for immediate shipment and to get under way in a week if orders were received."

"More than 250,000 tons are now lying at pier heads in England waiting for orders to ship," he said. "The immense amount of idle shipping would permit the exportation to get under way in a week if orders were received."

"The average" rate today is 7 shillings, 6 pence per ton, and I do not believe that it would be increased as the shipping agents are anxious to get all the trade possible. England could not export enough coal to leave shipping short, warranting an increase in freight rates.

CAPACITY PRODUCTION SOON

"Most pits in England are not working full time, but they would start capacity operations as soon as contracts warranting it were received. Thirty-two shillings a ton would be the average price for coal laid down in American ports on the Atlantic seaboard, with a shilling extra for anthracite."

"Regarding German coal from the Ruhr, I would rather not make a statement as that is a political matter in which I prefer not to mingle. But Germany is now buying English coal in the neighborhood of 100,000 tons monthly, indicating that there is a little available there under the present arrangements for the big monthly deliveries under the reparations agreement."

"There are approximately 4,500,000 tons of coal mined in England weekly, but could easily be increased to more than 5,000,000 tons and about 1,000,000 tons could be exported weekly. The production is less now, but the domestic needs are almost as heavy so there are smaller exports."

BOTTOMS ARE AVAILABLE

"Arrangements for the shipment of 250,000 tons would only be a matter of days, as the necessary stocks are ready and there is plenty of shipping available. We could begin deliveries early in August along the Atlantic seaboard if contracts were made now."

"Despite the rumors of trouble between the English coal owners and miners I do not expect difficulties. I do not believe the English coal miners would make objections to exporting English coal to the United States during the strike. Thus far there have been no manifestations of sympathetic action beyond the ordinary partisanship among the miners."

Sir John's statement that Germany was purchasing and importing coal was the first intimation that the German state was buying fuel abroad. At the present rate of exchange a ton of coal costs Germany 3540 marks.

Under the reparations agreement Germany is to deliver 1,000,000 tons of coal from the Ruhr monthly to France, a part of which France is turning over to the United States. A quantity of fuel are piling up everywhere in France.

American operators here believe that the United States could obtain large amounts from the French coal reserve.

HARDING HOPES TO END STRIKE

Don't Be Without a Piano!

wired R. A. Henning of St. Paul, general chairman, denying statements that he had asserted he was ready to negotiate with individual roads.

His message in reply to a query from Mr. Henning said: "Absolutely no truth in reports you mention. We are standing for one national settlement."

Except for making public the telegram, Mr. Henning had no comment tonight except that "everything looks fine." He said he would probably have a statement on the general situation tomorrow.

SUMMONED TO CAPITAL

Chairman Hooper was summoned to Washington after conferences between eastern rail executives and members of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee had failed to smooth out the situation.

Grand lodge officers of the maintenance-of-way organization meeting in Detroit decided that any road failing to hold conferences with maintenance-of-way men to adjust wage differences will face a strike on the individual road.

The Labor Board has already referred the wage matters back to the roads and unions, and has directed that the dispute be brought to the board in case an agreement is not reached.

Replying to assertions of union officials that the question of establishing national adjustment boards is holding up a peace settlement, William H. Finley, president of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway, asserted in a statement tonight that there is no connection between the present strike and the board of adjustment.

"It is merely an attempt of persons without a just cause to introduce purely irrelevant matters," he said, and pointed out that this question was not involved.

ADDITIONS TO STRIKE

Additions to the strikers' ranks included maintenance-of-way men on the Pennsylvania road between Porters and Altoona, Pa., and strike ballots were sent to 250 clerks and freight handlers of the Tacoma division of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul.

Many additional trains were announced. Short-run trains out of Sioux Falls, S. D., will be discontinued tomorrow, two Great Northern trains between Grand Forks and Devils Lake, N. D., were announced as were two between Grand Forks and Fargo. Washburn train service into Hannibal, Mo., will be discontinued tomorrow, it was reported. Northern Pacific also announced a train between Ashland and Duluth. A number of shipments were refusing some freight shipments, mostly of a perishable nature. Temporary injunctions against the striking shippers were secured by the Missouri Pacific and the St. Louis and San Francisco roads at Kansas City, Mo., while six labor leaders at Kansas City, Kan., filed a suit questioning the right of the Kansas court of industrial relations to assume jurisdiction over the strike shippers. Other roads applied for injunctions and restraining orders to prevent unlawful picketing and protect their property and employees.

least twelve mining accidents in each of which more than 100 miners have been killed. And more than a score of accidents happen each year in which one or more miners are killed, even when the mines are filled with experienced and skilled workers. What would be the toll of dead and injured if the mines were worked with inexperienced strike-breakers?

"What would the inexperienced man know about protecting himself against all the dangers that would surround him in a coal mine? In a recent year when, according to official reports of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, there was a total of 34,053 deaths and injuries in coal mines, 3719 men were killed, 8108 were seriously injured and 23,228 were slightly injured. These accidents were caused by falls of rock, (coal, rock, etc.), falls of coal, mine cars and locomotives, gas explosions and burning gas, coal dust explosions, blown-out of windy shots, explosives, suffocation from mine gases, electricity, animals, mining machines and other machinery, mine fires, falling down shafts or slopes, breaking of cables or chains, overwinding, mine cars and mine locomotives, boiler explosions and other causes."

RATE WILL INCREASE

"If coal mines are opened by experienced strike-breakers the public need not be surprised at the high accident rate."

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, issued a statement calling upon the government to force direct negotiations between the operators and strikers in both the coal and rail industries. His statement contained many veiled references to the administration's strike policy.

"Conference is the thing that is needed," said Mr. Gompers. "Let there be less talking about force and coercion. It is un-American and it will have no good effect. American workers are the most efficient workers in the world, but they will not work under duress. They will not enter into involuntary servitude, in violation of the Constitution."

"Labor asks for conference with the employers. If the government wishes results, if it wishes operation of mines and railroads, let it adopt the only course that can secure those results."

If the government cares more about sustaining the reputation of its helpless and all but defenseless Railroad Labor Board; if it cares more about a costly and ineffective military show than it does about justice and results, then it is on the right track.

"But labor urges the government to come back to a constructive and sane viewpoint."

FARM BUREAU CHIEF URGES STRIKES' END

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)
CHICAGO, July 21.—Declaring that "in the national interest we must all keep at our tasks," J. R. Howard, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation sent two messages to President Harding tonight, urging that everything possible be done to end the coal and rail strikes. President Howard asserted that threatening of grain would be stopped in many places because of lack of coal and the nation's food supply curtailed.

STRIKERS PARADE TO SHOW OFF STRENGTH

Former Boss Greets Men as They Pass by Railroad Shops

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)
FRESNO, July 21.—Staging a "strength" demonstration 200 shopcraft strikers paraded twice by the Southern Pacific roundhouse and rail yards this morning. The parade was marked only by peaceful means, union officials said, of bringing to the attention of the railroad the 100 per cent condition of the walkout.

Clarence E. Dowd, adviser for the unions, said that the only event that marked the parade as different from any other was the greeting the striking men received from George Aye, superintendent of the Southern Pacific roundhouse. Mr. Aye, Dowd said, came out to greet his former employees with a smile, "as you are all back."

"Sure I am," Aye is said to have replied, "but I'll smile still more when you boys are all back."

Having passed the roundhouse and yards twice, the strikers returned to their headquarters at Union Hall.

Nine Lives of "Pussyfoot" to Rescue Again

(BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
PLYMOUTH (Eng.) July 21.—The British steamer Remuera, bound for New Zealand via the Panama Canal with 544 passengers including William E. ("Pussyfoot") Johnson, collided last evening during a fog with an unidentified vessel near the Lizard.

An S. O. S. call was sent out but later the Remuera announced she was returning to Portland. Her lifeboats had been out all night vainly searching for traces of the other vessel.

Tugs which picked up the Remuera, 20 miles from Portland, found her damaged in the bow of her hold. Her pumps controlled the water, however, and the liner reached Portland under her own steam.

The liner, a 11,000-ton vessel, could not make a pier at Portland, however, and she was beached on the mud flats.

The passengers were all landed.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

(BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.)

NEW YORK, July 21.—Realizing sales, such as usually accompany week-end operations at this period of the year, and pressure from shorts, inspired largely by more menacing developments in the coal and railroad strikes, caused an irregular reaction of prices in today's stock market.

Early quotations were mainly toward higher levels, but with the progress of the session it became evident that the weight of offerings was in excess of buying power, more for a few of the more representative shares.

The latter were chiefly represented at Atlantic Coast line and Louisville and Nashville, properties more or less under identical ownership, in which gains of substantial proportions afforded a striking contrast to the heaviness of other the market.

Predictions of further cuts in crude oil were followed by a series of gains against that group. Mexican Petroleum reacted over six points from its top and closed at a loss of two points, domestic oil also being irregularly impaired.

Steels and equipments were subjected to greater pressure later, when Pittsburgh reported a shut-down at several of the big mills because of fuel shortage and the eastern railroads announced a "stand-pat" statement.

Motors were hammered down in the last hour, heavy selling then centering in Studebaker at a net loss of three and one-eighth points and reactions of one to two points in related stocks. Creditable sales maintaining a 1/4 per cent loss. Sales, $11,000,000.

All of the day's call money loans and renewals into next week were made at 4 per cent. Lenders reported a small inquiry for time funds but thirty to ninety-day accommodations continued to be offered at 1/2 per cent.

Firmness again prevailed in foreign exchanges, sterling rising to within a fraction of its best quotation of the week, with additional recoveries in French, Italian and Belgian marks. German marks and most of the neutrals, excepting Switzerland and Sweden, where nominal losses were recorded.

Stocks Quoted by E. F. Hutton & Co., Members New York Stock Exchange, 65 South Broadway, New York.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Following are the closing prices, gains and losses in quotations from previous close:

Studebaker American Woolen S. O. Indiana Southern Pacific

The recent popularity of the cash market has attracted shrewd and conservative investors to the woolen industry. The woolen goods stock on cash drive is an indication of a broad and active bull market in the cash market.

SAILOR IS KILLED IN CARSMASH

Falls Asleep at Wheel of Automobile; Companion Escapes Death

George H. Betta, seaman at the Los Angeles submarine base, died at the Base Hospital last night from injuries received in an auto Betts went to sleep at the wheel of his Studebaker machine and when the speeding car struck the guard rail of Nigger Slough grade a part of the heavy plank pierced his chest after having passed entirely through the radiator, cowl and dash of the machine. M. A. Williamson, also a sailor at the Base, was riding in the rear seat yesterday morning.

only slightly injured when the heavy car turned turtle in the smash and rolled down the one hundred-foot embankment. He remained unconscious for more than a half hour until a passing truck driver went to the assistance of the injured pair.

Betts was taken to the hospital, where he died from internal hemorrhages. Following military funeral services Monday morning the body will be shipped to the home of his mother, Mrs. Ellean

 Now every jail must have its queen; each pen must have its lady. A prison cell yawns for the belle whose past is somewhat shady. When lovely woman stoops to crime she's soon a star performer and highbrow folks become our jokes while trying to reform her.

THE AUTOMATIC CORNET
 A man claims to have invented a self-playing cornet. You feed it a sensitized roll of wire and then blow into it. The harmony comes out in a regular food. That is what the inventor says. Yet we feel that we should have to have one of these self-playing cornets as a home companion. Since Henry began to equip his road rabbits with starters we have been suspicious of everything. This idea may make for efficiency, but not for enjoyment. We have automatic pistols, riveting machines and vacuum cleaners and now comes the guy with a self-playing cornet. Just because a party can blow the steam of a glass of beer he may next be affronting our ears with the blare of the "March of the Prophets." When the world gets around to where it can play saxophone with an atomizer it will be a good time for some of us to leave it. At present there is no room in the hall of fame for the inventor of the steam-winding cornet.

THE UNWELCOME GUEST
 Emma Goldman is now living in Berlin under an assumed name and keeping away from the limelight. Once she went forth with a fiery tongue and an explosive brain. She was going to blow up the world and didn't care who knew it. Now she only asks to be let alone. She is afraid to have it known that she is in Berlin; even Germany will not furnish a harbor for women of her stripe—unless they keep under cover. Russia would not have her except on terms of soviet making. Sweden ordered her out of that country. She was thought to be a minority of the Danes. Evidently, the home of expatriates, did not want her. She was a woman without a country. She promised to do anything—even to entering a deaf mute's home—if permitted to return to America. But Uncle Sam was slow to her pleadings. She would do anything to recall her tempestuous past, but it is not to be accomplished. So she is trying to bury herself under another name.

FOR THE FUTURE
 The idea is to make Wilshire Boulevard 260 feet wide for its full length to the sea. It dreams come true and the parking plans are realized it will have a chance to become the most beautiful highway in America. Woodward Avenue, in Detroit, is 200 feet wide, but for its first four or five miles it is given over to business. There is no notable parking along its stretch. It is a highway and not much else. It is a fine thoroughfare for Henry Ford's productions and thus gains its greatest glory. But every block of Wilshire Boulevard would be beautiful and it would be in green all the year round. There are no seasons to spoil the face of nature. So it is that, if Los Angeles is to have wide and notable highways to help take care of the traffic and congestion problems that are at our immediate door, now is the time to provide for them. The work can never be executed more economically than now. With Wilshire doubled in width and Tenth street made at least 120 feet wide for its full length across the city it would be a wonderful easement of the journeyings of the Angelenos. It might be a good idea to call Tenth street by another name—Lincoln Boulevard, for instance. Our cross-town boulevards are named after our presidents and we have no thoroughfare for Lincoln now save a little street two blocks in length near Ninth and Bixel. Give the boulevard planners all the encouragement possible.

WILL BISMARCK'S WORK STAND?
 Strictly speaking, there was never a German Empire. Out of a loosely joined group of antagonistic states Bismarck welded together the powerful federation that dominated continental Europe in 1914. Included in that federation were the kingdoms of Bavaria, Saxony, Hanover, Württemberg and Prussia.

By the exercise of an abnormal will power, probably unique in the history of men, Bismarck consolidated these old-time warring kingdoms into a compact corporation for carrying on the business of all the German people.

In this corporation he installed Prussia as the dominant partner, and the King of Prussia—commonly but inaccurately described as "the Emperor of Germany"—as president of the Board of Kings.

Nor should it be forgotten that, on the breaking out of hostilities between Prussia and Austria in 1866, Bavaria, Saxony, Hanover and Württemberg were lined up on the side of Austria.

Bismarck was great as a war lord, but greater as a reconciler. To convert the strife-torn powers of 1866 into the homogeneous Germany of 1900 was the work of a colossal organizing brain.

Will Bismarck's work stand? The answer to that question is of paramount importance to European statesmen and world financiers.

It is well to remember that Germany united under a central control has existed for a very short period, nationally speaking; that what we called the German Empire was composed of a number of small kingdoms engaged for centuries in petty internecine wars; that only the genius of a Bismarck could have wrought so extraordinary a transformation and that it is hardly to be expected that a second Bismarck will spring up in the present century to cement together the broken pieces of Germany, should she disintegrate into her original fragments.

Signs are not lacking to point to the possibility of such a disintegration.

While Germany was successful in war and prosperous in peace no great difficulty presented itself in carrying on the work, left as a heritage to his countrymen by the great Chancellor.

But under the stress of debt, defeat and humiliation that Bismarckian monument may be razed to the ground.

Should Bavaria set up an independent kingdom, should Saxony repudiate Berlin, should the new German republic go up in civil war the result would probably hit the Allied powers harder than Germany itself.

England, France and Belgium for their own interests should so direct their policies that they may not cause a break-up of the present governing power of the new republic.

Bismarck, of course, did not bring about unity of the German states to enable them to pay their debts to their enemies. The idea of a Germany defeated in war never entered into his calculations. The suggestion of a German republic would probably have thrown him into an apoplectic fit.

Yet, for the sake of that republic and for the financial salvation of Germany's enemies, it is necessary that the work of Bismarck endure.

There is a touch of irony in this last tribute to Bismarck's imperialistic policies.

A NEW NATIONAL ANTHEM
 Changing old lamps for new has become almost a popular craze with ladies and gentlemen of leisure. While it is true that things in general are being done better today than they ever were before, nevertheless a substitute seldom proves as satisfactory as an original.

So, in this quite modern spirit, a grand offensive has been launched against our national anthem, "The Star Spangled Banner." Many of the objections to it are cogent, many of the criticisms plausible.

No doubt to cultured ears the poetry sounds crude. No doubt the sentiment expressed is martial. No doubt one stanza, at least, is objectionable to all who desire international harmony in world affairs. No doubt the air of a drinking song in a bonedry nation seems sadly out of tune.

But, after all, the real question is whether it is possible to write an anthem more truly reflecting the present spirit of the nation. We may take that for granted. Nor is it material to inquire whether pious music in the grand mode of Mozart would be more suitable for a national anthem than the syncopated measures of a bar-room ballad.

The important question is: Does popular sentiment demand this change? Is even a minority of the plain people clamoring for more stately music and more classical words?

We don't believe that our people in general are eager to abolish "The Star Spangled Banner."

For, after all, it isn't the music and it isn't the words that give to a national song its stirring appeal to the hearts of those who hear it. It is the associations and memories clustering around the music and the words that have immortalized "The Star Spangled Banner" till it has obtained a grip on the affections of the nation not to be shaken off by critical analysis of its manifold imperfections.

Scholars may write a new anthem for us in heroic meter; they may fill it with the breath of brotherly love; they may set it to majestic music.

But will the people sing it? Songs that have aroused patriotic fervor at times of national stress have never so been created.

What was the great song of the Spanish-American War? Was it one of sublime idealism? "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" was the unheroic measure that inspired a nation.

And in the World War what songs caught the popular fancy? "Over There" and "Tipperary" led all the rest.

Therefore we may conclude that, though "The Star Spangled Banner" is decidedly open to criticism as a mold of peace sentiment and, though the origin of the air could, with advantage, be forgotten and though it may be as crude as its critics declare, since it has been the heart of the anthem has been woven the patriotism of a generation of Americans, it will not be easily dislodged from its high place of honor.

CHALLENGE OF THE MOUNTAIN
 Will the time ever arrive when there will be no more words to conquer for the slinging Alexanders?

The mystery has already been taken out of the two poles. No more Stanleys or Livingstones will again win everlasting glory in darkest Africa. Romance is stale in South Sea Islands.

All the lost rivers have been found and all the uncharted seas duly mapped and blue-printed. Kilua's hidden fires are to be tapped to run steam engines. Man is to have weighed and balanced this whole earth of his in the hollow of his hand.

Yet nature has one stronghold left, invincible so far to the assault of man. Coldly hostile, above the serried flanks of the wild Himalayas, Mt. Everest flings his challenge to all who care to take it up. They come, they see, but so far none has conquered.

Another party of British climbers, the last contenders for championship honors, has just taken the count. Though they broke the altitude record, Mt. Everest itself is still an unconquered peak.

Of course man, proud man, will never admit final defeat at the hands of any inanimate object. Not even the biggest mountain in the world. And naturally he will assign reasons for each failure and point out the conditions under which victory will be won.

From the last disastrous attack on the big hill we learn that, given favorable

MEN IN THE NEWS

BY RANDOLPH LEEGE

Minnehaha's Brother.
 A Master of Roullette.
 On the Wings of Song.

With quaint references to the days "when people spoke of the Tichnor with 'old' (sic) breath and Mrs. Othello on Washington's Birthday sitting in state with her husband on," Ernest Longfellow, son of the poet, has come out with a book decidedly above the usual product of a famous man's son.

"Ballet" breath is not so common as it once was and for that reason these pleasant glances backward which characterize "Random Memories" and give us an acquaintance with the son, even more interesting than the picture of the father, take on additional interest.

Ernest Longfellow is just modern enough to indulge in mellow pessimism and is nevertheless smart enough of the artist to see the humor of constantly viewing with alarm. After all, he is a painter of no mean ability, and no man who has the enthusiasm to work diligently with fire at any thing can really believe that we are all only a few days from complete social and intellectual chaos—else he would not stick to his self-imposed task.

He tells one little incident that proves anew that the Massachusetts Lodge seems always, in their classical way, busy themselves correcting or chastening other people. It seems that the father of the present United States Senator on one occasion whipped the poet's son rather soundly with a cane, causing a feud which in its day must have caused scarcely less of a tempest than some of the international feuds in which Henry Cabot Lodge has played an aggressive part.

That the painter writes with sincerity is shown in many ways. For instance, in discussing the rumor that Sarah Bernhardt kissed his father when they met, he says he is not positive on that point, but adds that "it sounds likely."

In another place he records with glee that at a formal dinner the mighty Sumner mistook gray for soap and courageously devoured a dish of it. He rather intimates that his cautious way, that this fact was preceded by a little of the breath baiting frequently referred to in the book.

The Prince of Minnes, who died a short time ago, somehow cannot slip from notice as easily as other monarchs. For one thing he left a large estate, the disposition of which is right now engaging the attention of some of the best business men and lawyers of Europe. For another he was decidedly a man apart.

He was probably the only monarch who ever "slipped over," to use his own expression. The government on his people. Descended from a family which had possessed that diminutive kingdom for virtually a thousand years, he was vested with enormous power and at the same time had subjects so accustomed to being ruled with a strong hand that he found it difficult to win them over to the new ways of the world which he determined to place the responsibilities of government upon them.

It was his fate to be known as the owner of the most famous gambling place in the world, whose ambition was to accomplish important things as a scientist. Actually he was one of the foremost authorities of his age on ocean currents, and his studies of reports on marine life were not only diverting to him, but proved to be of tremendous benefit to the Allies in conducting their naval warfare against the Central Powers.

His income from Monte Carlo ran into gigantic figures each year, but he saw to it that its doors were always closed to his own subjects. This brought sharp criticism upon him from within and without his kingdom.

It took him many months to persuade his people to take over the government under an extremely liberal constitution, which he drew up and offered to them. As a matter of fact, he was only able finally to make them assume self-government by exerting kingly pressure. He was such a satisfactory realist that his people preferred to remain subjects.

Bohemian's foremost citizen is a total abstainer. The ideal of one of the most ragged nations of Europe was no more. The dominant figure in the musical capital of the world was so dull as a youth that he was three times rejected when examined for the Prague Conservatory of Music.

Today that citizen, that idol, that once dull youth, Otokar Svoboda, is not only acknowledged to be one of the most gifted exponents of the violin, but is receiving remarkable tributes from his pupils and admirers in every land. At 70 he seems just beginning to hit his stride. He is now the president of the conservatory which thrice rejected him. Jan Kubelik was among the score or more of his famous pupils who delighted a few days ago to do him honor.

Svoboda is one of the exceptional men of Europe, possessing a soaring imagination, coupled with the patience to work tirelessly on the most minute details. To a degree hardly understandable in our land he is a solidist and even an industrialist.

Yet Svoboda spent twenty-two years working on text-books for violinists. The study of the use of the fingers and thumb of the left hand occupied him for ten years. Then he devoted twelve years to mastering the most intricate problems in the use of the bow. A ghastly quandering of life, according to her standards, but at last his reward came.

He has not only labored long years over his problems, but has packed each day with staggering long hours of work. He takes only four hours of sleep a day. Almost eighteen hours a day are devoted to teaching and study, with short intervals for exercise and rest. He has followed this Spartan schedule for years and is still perfectly sound physically and dynamic in matters of the intellect.

"Frigidarians," the automatic household refrigerators, built by the General Motors Corporation, you know, is nothing short of marvelous! You see, it renders you absolutely the most satisfactory service by keeping every kind of perishable food, including fruits, or cetera, for a surprisingly long time in a delightful condition. Then it makes all the ice you want for table use freezing dairy food, molasses, sherberts, and desserts in the freezing compartment. Frigidarians is made in three sizes and finished in golden oak or white enamel. It is displayed and demonstrated as well in the office of Ebert & Smith, 600 Metropolitan Bldg., 5th and Broadway. Their phone number is 14871.

In order to keep a home comfortably sprinkled with automatic Frigidarians, many persons have an idea that they are very expensive but when you take into consideration the time saved, the energy conserved, and the water which is not wasted, you can see for yourself that in a few months these excellent sprinklers practically pay for themselves and your lawn will be much better in consequence. How to keep our linens, skirts and fine materials from wearing out too speedily and becoming shabby is one of the problems ever confronting Angeleno housewives.

Many prudent housekeepers are now using White King Washing Machine Soap in granular form. The majority consider it an ideal solution to such problems and praise it as the most perfect cleaning agent obtainable. The finest materials may be washed with it for they come from the tub not only as good as new but with their delicate colors preserved. Every day sees the popularity of White King Washing Machine Soap increasing because of the fact that discriminating women have begun to demand it.

Some people prefer a whisk broom to sprinkle clothes with, and it is sufficient a bottle with perforated top as equally as good, uniformly distributing the moisture.

It would be hard to find in a day's travel a chocolate more delicious than the one made by McDonald's Roof Garden Chocolate. You know it may be bought in the sweetened cake form—though in the partially sweetened powder it is ready to serve in no time at all and in the wafer form it is equally convenient. Before retiring a cup of McDonald's Roof Garden Chocolate, served hot is ever so restful. Have it for lunch or in the afternoon, and make some "brownies" to eat with it using again this excellent chocolate which is proving not only economical but indispensable in the homes of progressive home-makers.

Don't forget about using a cork to apply scouring powder to clean knives. It is far better than a small cloth and takes up less room, being more sanitary as well.

The shape of all "Angeleno" White Enamel Kitchenware adds greatly to its desirability and attractiveness. The Acme Cleaners, 148 1/2 S. The routine in almost every home is the same, after all is said and done. N'est-ce pas? There is a certain order which must be of enough variety to provide for the vagaries of each member of the family. It is not only that, but the evening hour today, a picnic is proposed for Sunday what will you make of it? All these perplexities are erased if you have remembered to include a crate of the L. A. Creameries dairy products in the order given the grocer. Their excellent idea of making everything in which it is put and on which it is spread a dozen times more delicious and varied than the variety kinds of cheese the L. A. is famed for leaves nothing to be desired if one tastes runs in the direction. Let's not forget to include a number of the little waxed cartons of Cottage Cheese for they are indispensable during this kind of weather and make us truly grateful for this very fine dairy and its numerous delectable food products.

WORTHLESS CHECK CHARGED TO WOMAN

Charged with giving a worthless check made out for $250, Grace S. Hopkins of 1775 Orchard Street was brought before Judge Frederickson yesterday on a complaint secured through the City Prosecutor by the State Labor Commission. The check had been paid to Frank Beat, cinema director living at 4408 D Street. As part of his salary for directing a picture which she produced at the Fox Arts studio in the Hollywood Bowl, where the Philharmonic Orchestra will play. Owners who desire to help these youngsters break the drink habit of the lives should telephone C. M. Pierce, Hollywood 218.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.
Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS
Back to Methuselah
Methuselah ate what he found on his plate.
And never, as people do now, did he note the amount of the Calorie count.
He ate it because it was chow. He didn't believe my soda-cracker.
Destroying a roast or a pie, to think it was lacking in granular fat.
Or a couple of vitamins shy. He cheerfully chewed every species of food.
Untroubled by worries or fears, lest his health might be hurt by some fancy dessert.
And he lived over nine hundred years!

"Dear Dr. Lulu (That's what we call you to our home):
I, who am reducing religiously, found this booklet, this morning. But I am not discouraged! I kept right on at the high-class material which they carry in all the ultra color combinations, but you will be equally delighted with their low prices and excellent workmanship. By calling Phone 5665 a man will gladly call and give estimates."

In vain, I have searched the scriptures to see if there is any light given on the subject of the extreme age of Methuselah and his contemporaries. I don't find anything. I don't even find what the author of the verses found, that he chewed every species of food cheerfully, untroubled by worries or fears!

However, Methuselah's table habits, if it is a correct idea in correct accounts for it. While he did not count calories, nor worry about the vitamins, he got all the needed elements because he ate every species of food. And he got a lot of exercise of course, because the people of his times were a pastoral and agricultural people and they did not have a lot of labor saving machinery or means of getting about without expending any energy.

So, while perhaps Methuselah ate less than we eat any more than he needed for his activities and store the balance in fat on his venerable body. He had he would not have lived so long.

I am glad you did not let any temptations make you give up the good fight soon. You are doing the very thing you ought to do, get to the Methuselah age limit. Let us know how you progress.

"P.S.—I like what you call me in your home."

To the woman who is 62 years old and cannot seem to reduce on 1200 Calories a day.

Evidently, that is your maintenance diet; and as you have reduced already, you are doing better than you think. I would not worry about reducing any more. As I have told some of our other followers, in order to lose you may have to go on a 600 or 650-Calorie diet once a week, then go back to your maintenance diet of 1200. Perhaps you are counting your foods too low in Calories. At your age the diet does not require so much food as it would if you were chronologically younger. I say this for it is evident that you are in truth young, and is it safe to allow a child of 3 to eat bananas?

Bananas are a valuable food to add to the diet of school children, but at the age of 3 years the digestive system has not matured sufficiently to make their use quite safe. In the first place, unless perfectly ripe, when the skins are almost black, and starch in the banana is similar to raw starch in uncooked foods. This means that the starch digesting part of the child's system is taxed beyond its powers. Even when the bananas are ripe if served uncooked they are apt to be too much for a 3-year-old. You might carefully supervised with a little pulp from baked bananas; in general, however, my advice is wait till the child is at least of school age. It may be added that the caution about perfect ripeness applies equally to bananas which are to be served to older children.

Here's another inspiration:
"Dear Doctor: I am 70 years old, but do not think I am going to be laid on the shelf just yet, if I know it! I do my housework for myself and husband and work our doors as much as I can. Now I have overcome a 30-year's steep diet of constipation by eating coarse foods like bran crumbs, lots of vegetables, raw mustard leaves, lettuce, etc., but I do not know whether I eat in the right proportions of protein, carbohydrate, fat, etc. Please tell how to gain if you can't look so scrawny. Mrs. A."

Count your Calories, Girl! You will probably find that you are getting too few. If you eat 300 to 350 Calories of protein, and not too much fat, you can let your tastes be guided by the amount of carbohydrate. Don't worry about these things. Gradually add to your diet a few more Calories and you will gain. But remember, it is the scrawny girls who live the longest, and can wear the latest styles! We have a list of the protein Calories in the most used articles of food which you may have by sending a S. S. a. through the paper to me. Write again and tell us how you get along.

PRACTICAL RECIPES
Helps for Epicures and All
Who Appreciate Good
Cooking

(Chief Wymen will give his tested and proved recipes to The Times readers, names for special occasions, and any information pertaining to the preparation and service of foods that they may request. All answers published in this column Saturday. Address: Chief
A. L. Wymen, Laboratory Kitchen, 404
Arden Ave., Glendale.—Ed.)

D. W., of Riverside writes that she was unable to make a good currant jelly with one cup of pure currant juice and one cup of sugar, this well boiled down. She also asks that we furnish a recipe for making salt rising bread.

The majority of jelly failures are due to the addition of too much sugar to the juice and too long boiling. Good jelly depends on the amount of pectin the juice contains and this can be determined by testing with alcohol. Cool the strained fruit juice and to one teaspoon add one teaspoon of grain alcohol and mix thoroughly. If it will form one mass use one cup of sugar to a cup of juice. If it forms a mass use three-quarters of a cup of sugar to a cup of juice.
If it is very much separated use half a cup of juice. Put the juice on the fire and at the first boil add the required amount of sugar, which has been warmed in the oven. Remove a tablespoon of the boiling jelly and place on a cold plate.
When it drops from the spoon it has cooked long enough and when it strikes the plate it should tell Fruit should not be too ripe so make good jelly. If the pectin content is small add the white part of an orange tied in a small piece of cheese cloth and boil with the juice. Remove after skimming and just before pouring into the glass.

SALT RISING BREAD
Mix two tablespoons of corn meal with one teaspoon of salt and pour over them one and one-half cups of boiling milk and mix well.
Set in a warm place over night to rise. In the morning stir three-quarters of a cup of warm water and enough warm flour to make a smooth dough that can be molded. Work in one tablespoon of lard and one tablespoon of sugar.
Mold into loaves, let rise until light in a warm place and bake in a medium oven. Do not allow any part of the salt rising bread mixture to become chilled.

CARAMEL NUT CAKE
D.L. city, requests a recipe for caramel nut cake made in a loaf and covered with a frosting made of powdered and caramelized sugar. Beat to a cream one cup of butter and one cup of sugar.
When well creamed beat in one at a time five eggs, beating well as each egg is added. Add two cups of sifted flour, one teaspoon of lemon juice, one teaspoon of almond extract and three tablespoons of chopped walnut meats. Bake in a greased and floured loaf cake pan. Cool and cover with a frosting made by adding to half a cup of caramelized sugar enough powdered sugar to make it thick enough to spread. Use no baking powder.

TOMATO AND BEEF LOAF
R.H.N., Long Beach, wants directions for making tomato and beef loaf with gelatin. Pour over one tablespoon of gelatin half a cup of cold water and let stand ten minutes. Heat three-quarters of a cup of seasoned tomatoes to the boiling point and stir into the soaked gelatin until the gelatin is dissolved. Mix with two cups of chopped, well-done beef, one tablespoon of lemon juice and one tablespoon of finely chopped sour pickles. Stir the tomato mixture into the meat mixture and pour into a wet pint mold. Let stand in the ice box until solid. The mold can be lined with slices of

FRUIT FRITTERS
For fruit fritters make a batter by adding to the beaten yolk of 1 egg a pinch of salt, 2 tablespoons of water, 1 tablespoon of melted butter, and 1/2 cup of sifted flour.
Beat smooth. Add 2 tablespoons of milk and the stiffly beaten egg white. Dip pieces of fruit in this batter and fry in deep, hot, clear shortening, olive oil, lard or beef drippings. Drain the fried fritters on unglazed paper and dust with powdered sugar.

POP CORN BALLS
Select good pop corn and put enough in the popper to just cover the bottom, sprinkle the corn with cold water, hold popper near the fire for 2 or 3 minutes and then shake over the fire until the corn is all popped.

Place in a kettle 1 cup and 4 tablespoons of corn syrup, 1 cup of sugar, 1 teaspoon of butter, 1 tablespoon of vinegar, 1 tablespoon of water and 1 teaspoon of vanilla.
Stir all together and boil until it will form a hard ball when a little is dropped in cold water. Watch that it does not burn. Place the popped corn in deep pan and pour over the boiling syrup. Wet the hands and shape into balls.

TOMATO SOY
R. G. D., City, says that her grandmother made a tomato soy that was delicious and wants to know if we can supply her with the recipe. Do not know how her grandmother made her tomato soy, but will be glad to give her the one we use. Peel and slice 1 gallon of sound, ripe tomatoes and put in a preserving kettle with 4 cups of chopped onions, 2 tablespoons of sugar, 2 tablespoons of salt, 2 teaspoons of paprika, 2 teaspoons of white pepper, 5 hearts of celery chopped fine, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, and teaspoon of mace. Stir over a slow fire until reduced 1/2.
Stir in 4 cups of good vinegar, skim and bottle hot, seal and store in a cool dark place. Ready for use in 1 month.

CRACKER PIE
M.K. city, has wanted a recipe for a cracker pie for a long time and asks that we supply it.
Line a pie tin with a good pie pastry. Pour over four well-rolled crackers, one and a half cups of cold water and let stand twenty minutes; add the grated rind and juice of one lemon, one cup of sugar, one teaspoon of melted butter and a few grains of salt. Pour the mixture into the lined pie tin.
Cover with pastry and bake thirty-five minutes in a medium oven.

QUINCE HONEY
M. B. Lankershim, will have a fine lot of quinces this year, and wants recipes for quince honey that can be used for cake fillings, custards and candied quinces. For the quince honey peel and grate four large quinces and cook with a very little water until tender.
To three cups of sugar, add three cups of water and cook until it will form a soft ball when a little is dropped in cold water. Add the quinces and cook twenty minutes stirring constantly.

CANDIED QUINCE
Core, peel and cut in thin slices enough quinces to make four pounds. Pour boiling water over the slices and let stand ten minutes. Drain and cover with fresh boiling water and boil for seven minutes. Melt slowly eight cups of sugar and half a cup of water. Add the drained quince slices and cook very slowly until the slices are clear and in color. Cover plates with a layer of sugar and lay on the drained quince slices.
Cover with sugar and let stand in a dry place over night. Pack in layers in tight tin boxes. Sprinkle sugar between the layers.

twenty minutes. Remove the grape leaves and let mangoes stand in the vinegar one week.
Make the stuffing by soaking one pound of ginger root in brine for two days and then chopping it fine.
Add to the ginger one ounce of coarsely ground black pepper, one cup of black mustard seed, one cup of white mustard seed, one ounce of mace, one ounce of allspice, half an ounce of turmeric, three cloves of garlic finely chopped and half a cup of olive oil. Mix all well and add to one small head of cabbage finely chopped, one cup of finely chopped onion, half a cup of finely chopped pimento, one teaspoon of brown sugar, half a cup of chopped cucumber pickles, and four tablespoons of orange juice. Work the stuffing well and fill the cleaned mangoes with it. Sew up the slit with white bread, pack them in stone jars, cover with good, cold cider vinegar, float a layer or film of olive oil on the top, tie down the cover and let stand one month;
then add two pounds of brown sugar and let stand two months and they will be ready for use. Use same method for stuffed green peppers.

National PresidentDelegates Select Cleveland for Next ConventionGreater Part of Final Day is Taken Up by Clinics

Dr. W. A. Giffen of Detroit was elected president of the American Dental Association at a meeting of the house of delegates at the Ambassador hotel yesterday.

The constitution of the association says that the president shall be elected at least one term before he takes office and, as a result, Dr. Giffen will not take up his new duties until the close of the meeting next year.

Other officers elected are: Dr. John Stephens of Cleveland, first vice-president; Dr. C. W. Alexander, Piedmont, N. C., second vice-president; Otto U. King, Chicago, re-elected secretary, and Arthur Mainly, Knoxville, Tenn., treasurer.

CLEVELAND CHOSEN

The president for the coming year, Dr. John W. Buckley of this city, was installed in office. He was elected at the last convention of the association.

In his inauguration address, Dr. Buckley stated that he intends to use the present slogan of the association during his term of office and to carry on the plans of the association which have been submitted this year in prosperity for the organization.

Cleveland was the next convention, which will be held the week of Sept. 11, 1935.

More than 500 dentists took part in the final division work yesterday. Visitors from all over the country contributed to the program which, while of interest to dentists because of its technical nature, attracted many who are visiting the convention with the delegates.

The largest of these clinic delegations came from Atlanta, Ga., and is known as the Atlanta Dental Society Club. Other clinic groups were from Oregon State, California, Wisconsin, and a number of members from three counties in Southern California's orange belt. University students from California, Alabama, Utah, and several from the east.

PRESIDENT PLEASED

Dr. Giffen, president of the association, stated that he was well pleased with the work of the convention this year and especially with the clinic.

The support given to the association has been greater this year than ever before, and although the number of dentists is decreasing each year for some unknown reason, the spirit of those who belong to this association is wonderful.

The enthusiasm shown in clinical work is exceptional. Large clinics from all over the country have taken great pains to prepare their work and have presented it in a creditable way. I believe clinic members deserve our heartfelt thanks and approval.

Late in the afternoon the women visitors to the convention were entertained by a trip to the old San Gabriel mission, where they saw "The Mission."

EXHIBITS ATTRACTIVE

During the week many visitors made trips to the exhibits lodged in the circus tents on the hotel grounds. In addition to the dental exhibits, there was a health exhibit by the various state societies and larger dental associations which showed the state of teeth from the time a child is born until the adult period and the care the mother should take before the child is born. The Minnesota State association had the largest exhibit. The dental association of Japan had a display of various diseases of the teeth.

The Orange County Dental Society had the most popular advertising exhibit, a long counter at which was served orangeade to all those who wished a free sample of the county's fruit product.

The convention closed late yesterday afternoon following the election of officers by the House of Delegates and the last business meeting of that body for the perfection of association plans for the coming year.

House-Breaking and for Hold-up

Mike Sullivan and W. E. Groves had a busy day in two courts yesterday, being held to answer for two hold-ups, in one of which they are charged with obtaining $40,000 in diamonds.

Before Justice of the Peace Baird, the men and William Allen, appeared on the complaint of Mrs. R. J. Rowan, who was robbed of the jewels by three men that entered her home in Westside avenue. Mrs. Rowan on the witness stand said the jewels were worth about $40,000 and in excess of the amount reported on the day of the robbery.

Jack Stenberg, charged with having received the stolen jewels, will have a hearing August 2. The police say they have recovered the settings of the diamonds.

Although Sullivan and Groves were credited with exhibiting their Robin Hood generosity on another occasion, they also were said to answer for robbery by Justice of the Peace Minshaw, earlier in the day.

G. C. Knight testified that the two defendants held him up at the Standard Oil station at the intersection of the main highway and Union streets, and took $14.65 of the company's money on July 4. The complaining witness said there were additional witnesses laying on the table and that the bandits want to take it and explained that it was his money, whereupon one of them said, "We ain't robbing you," and left him.

Mother of Young Star Appointed as His GuardianThe Whole Coogan Family Left to right are shown Jackie, his mother and his proud father.

WELL, folks, Jackie Coogan's mother won't have to worry any longer about the $10,000 and some dollars which he garners each year by cutting capers for the celluloid.

Judge James C. Rives appointed the guardian yesterday. She's an old friend of the little film star, having been his mother for several years before this new dignity was placed upon her. Mrs. Lillian R. Coogan is her name and her bonds were fixed at $100,000.

Jackie's dad, who's called Jack to differentiate him from his son, also got a job. Judge Rives made him the boy's official manager. The petition for guardianship was filed by Attorney Peirson M. Hall, representing the parents on the grounds that the Coogans wished to protect Jackie's money and stop the millions of dollars being paid in the manner in which it is being spent. Under the law they will have to make a periodical report to the court on all expenditures of the child-star's income.

Water Nymphs Caused Men to

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent
(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

LONG BEACH, July 21.—The mystery of why lumber handlers in Long Beach are falling down on the job was solved today. For several days past there has been a lack of the usual activity with which lighters filled with lumber have been unloaded at the piers. Hot weather and many other things were blamed for it by the lumber companies and finally an investigation by the police brought to light the cause of the delay.

The cause of the delay was the water nymphs. Floating tins of spoiled sardines, thousands in number, washed upon the regular bathing beaches, and the presence of oil on the surface of the water, has been the cause of many of the regulars abandoning their old haunts. They have gone to Sea Gull Island for their bathing.

LOCAL SOLOMON
HAS HARD DAYJustice Defeated by Great Accordion MysteryJurisprudence All Used Up; Dismisses CaseDeclares He Won't Settle
Bootleggers' Row

The great piano-acordion mystery was still unraveled last night when Justice of the Peace Follette locked the door of his chambers in the Courthouse and said good-night to the janitor, then resting on his broom.

The case had consumed a large part of the day, and the Justice was tired.

COWBOY ACCUSED

Zibe Morse, a motion picture cowboy, said he had been a real one once, was arraigned on a charge of the larceny of a piano-acordion. The complaining witness was William A. Fisher, who admitted that he was in the habit of playing the instrument, music being his vocation.

Mr. Fisher upon taking the stand said that he and Mr. Morse were fellow inmates of the County Jail at the time the accordion was stolen, as he charges, and that it had cost him $600 and was evened up as Fisher's eyes filled as he spoke of his precious wind-pump.

Mr. Morse then occupied the stand for nearly an hour. It was the burden of his tale that he and Mr. Fisher had been working bootlegging, and that upon obtaining his liberty Mr. Fisher, still in jail, had begged him to take his piano-acordion and sell it. Mr. Morse said the money was to be used, according to Mr. Fisher's instructions, in buying a new spring release, free or get out of jail said Mr. Fisher, then defendant in the liquor case and now complaining witness in the accordion matter. Mr. Morse said he had proceeded to the man from whom he had bought the accordion, chased and had obtained $200 on it, using this sum to employ a lawyer.

FINANCES MIXED

Mr. Fisher on rebuttal admitted that Mr. Morse had been entrusted with the accordion but to use it for obtaining funds for bail for himself. He said that the attorney's fees, the bail being recoverable, he explained.

The witness on the stand, Victor Meneghetti, Mr. Meneghetti opined that he had received the accordion, of the so-called piano-acordion, because of a term he had been recognized as Curry's by the piano-acordion reduced to terms of dollars had been used for that purpose.

Mr. Morse, who had been charged with the larceny of the accordion, had been fined $10, but Mr. Morse, it developed, went to the county jail and it was there, in the time his place on the movie lot was taken by a Long Beach cowpuncher, that he had the accordion and rubber heels on his boots.

COURT GIVES UP

Mr. Meneghetti then offered to produce the piano-acordion in court, at which Mr. Fisher's eyes filled with tears and he broke as he stretched out his hands, but Justice Follette called him back and said he was straightening himself in his chair.

After more time of this court will be taken up with hearing about a quarrel between two bootleggers. The action is herewith dismissed.

Youth Sustains
Serious Injury

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

PARADISE, July 21.—John L. Phillips, 16 years of age, of 107 South Bonnie avenue, was injured seriously today when a portion of a house being erected at the corner of the street and First Methodist Church, fell on him and broke his left leg. Phillips was working on the second floor of the building, which is at Oak and Colton streets, when the wall collapsed, and he was bruised beneath the debris.

Planned by the city of Paradise, the building was under construction by the City of Paradise. Phillips was a truck driver, of 64½ East Twenty-first street, Los Angeles, was treated at the Emergency Hospital for severe burns about his hand and arm received when he removed his radiator cap to put in fresh water. A jet of hot water and steam struck him.

WOMAN INJURED

Federal Officers Said To Be Cause of Accidents

REDLANDS, July 21.—Mrs. E. W. Vandy, well known business woman of Redlands, was badly hurt when an automobile driven by her husband, overturned on the Cajon road and across a bridge. Suddenly a big car was stretched across the road and when he put on his brakes his car skidded and went into the retaining wall of the bridge. The sign had the words "Stop U. S. Immigration Officers."

Frank LeMay is in charge of the immigration officers and he says the sign has often been used to stop machines and never has caused an accident before.

PASTOR PLEADS
FOR INDIANSPimas Losing Sources of

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent
(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

PASADENA, July 21.—A plea for the Pima Indians, hemmed into the almost waterless Gila Valley by a ring of white settlers who have forced them to the shores of irrigation, was made to the joint session of the California and Arizona Presbyterian synods and night by Rev. Dirk Lay, missionary to the Pimas. The missionary declared the Pimas were in danger of extermination unless they receive government aid in solving their water problems.

"In the states of this tribe, which goes back nearly 600 years, there is no record of a Pima Indian ever killing a white man," said Mr. Lay, who is a Pima and positively dangerous for a white man to go into the Gila Valley now. There are 5000 Pimas and only three of them have been arrested or charged with crime in the last seven years. They have always been friendly to the whites, and their only request is that the government give them water so that they may drink, raise food and live.

He described his parish as a "ditch fifteen miles long by ten miles wide," and said its inhabitants have been driven to the nearest Indian church in the United States. The first man from Arizona to be killed on the front in Pima was a Pima Indian and one of Mr. Lay's converts.

COMPLETE ORGANIZATION

The two synods completed their organization today by installing Rev. Arthur H. Fowler as moderator of the California synod and Rev. John Butler of Navajo to preside over the Arizona body. The California synod was headed by William S. Young of Los Angeles, as stated clerk. Dr. Young has been a member of the synod for thirty years. He is the superintendent of the Hollenbeck Home and was the builder of several churches in the Pima valley. The Arizona synod held only a short session.

The California synod business was the consolidation and reorganization of the synod's missionary work. The synod decided to create a field council, consisting of a chairman and one representative from each of the synods, and to reduce the number of committees in the synod to four which will have entire supervision of the state.

LAWYER ON STAND

Thereupon one William Durham, barrister-at-law, took the stand and testified that he had been employed to represent both Mr. Morse and Mr. Fisher as he had committed the crime. He said the piano-acordion reduced to terms of dollars had been used for that purpose.

PLEA FOR AGED PASTORS

Rev. W. A. Squires, director of week-day religious education, declared that only 20 per cent of the Protestant children of America are receiving any religious education, and that the remainder of the American child receives only twenty-six hours religious instruction a year.

Mr. Squires said that he was a certain number of hours each week allotted to the religious groups of the community, with credit for the same. There would be no organic connection with the schools of the community. The plan, Dr. Squires said, already is in operation in 300 cities of the country and in 400 public schools.

Following the morning session tomorrow the synod will go to Eagle Rock to inspect Occidental College.

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

SAN DIEGO, July 21.—Lieutenant C. L. Weber and Virgil Hines of the Army, will leave Rockwell Field next week on one of the longest flights yet attempted by army fliers. The trip will take the fliers as far East as Denver, south to the Gulf of Mexico, thence west along the Pacific. The distance covered will be about 4,000 miles.

The flight will be made in accordance with plans of the air service to photograph thoroughly and map every part of the United States. The exact course of the fliers, as announced by Maj. Robert H. Hines, commander of Rockwell Field, is as follows: Rockwell Field to San Francisco; San Francisco to Salt Lake; Salt Lake to Denver; Denver to Fort Sill, Okla.; Fort Sill to San Antonio; San Antonio to El Paso; El Paso to Nogales, and thence back to San Diego.

REDLANDS, July 21.—

Disension in the ranks has ruined many an expedition and so it did with that of Darwin Done, 8 years old; Orel Sloan, 9 years old; and William Brown, 10 years old. They split because of difference of opinion as to the exact locality they intended to get the world by the tail and call it theirs.

The three youngsters ran away from their home in Los Angeles yesterday. They caught rides to Redlands and here came to the parting of the ways. Darwin wanted to go to New Mexico to herd sheep, Orel elected to go in-plane to Mexico and hunt a silver mine, while Bill was strong for going into the Salt River Valley and raising cotton.

And the difference of opinion came to blows and the attention of the police. The youngsters were taken to the police station where they gladly gave their names and addresses and decided to do their world tail-twisting in Los Angeles.

Calls Oil Men to Conference at Long Beach

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent
(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

LONG BEACH, July 21.—Oil land owners and oil operators of the Signal Hill district have been asked by City Manager Hewes to attend a meeting next Tuesday night in Long Beach, at which plans for the curbing of the threatened overproduction of oil in the local field will be discussed.

Efforts will be made, Mr. Hewes said, to devise a plan for stopping overproduction of oil in the local field. The plan will be to limit the rate of production of oil in the local field to 100,000 barrels a day within the next two months if the Signal Hill field continues to develop at its present rate, according to a statement made today by E. E. Collier, state oil and gas supervisor.

Collier's report made to the California State mining bureau on the 18th inst. stated that fifty-two wells in the Signal Hill field are at present producing about 65,000 barrels of oil daily. A total of ninety-five wells were drilling.

PRODUCING WELL

New Gusher at Redondo Beach Creates Excitement

REDONDO BEACH, July 21.—An oil well brought in on the Standard lease at the eastern edge of the city, last night, is estimated as producing 5000 barrels a day. Production makes the Redondo well a proven territory and has created a stir in drilling circles.

At the present time thirty-two wells within the next thirty or sixty days. One of the most significant features of the field here is the fact that a large portion of the territory within a radius of twelve miles is owned by a single owner, the independent companies with only a few exceptions. There are no stock selling propositions on the field and practically one-third of the lots within the city have been leased for drilling. Gravity tests show a fine high-grade oil with a gradual improvement and steady flow noticeable.

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

LONG BEACH, July 21.—Plans are being completed for the entertainment of more than 800 delegates to the American Institute of Banking convention, recently held at Portland. The delegates and their wives now en route to Southern California, will be guests at a banquet to be given at the Hotel Virginia next Monday night. Hundreds of the delegates will be accompanied by wives and daughters.

PLAN TO ATTEND
LEGION MEETING

REDLANDS, July 21.—San Bernardino county may send two carloads of World War veterans to the national convention of the American Legion to be held in New Orleans in September. The matter is being taken up in all the posts so as to get the delegation together and plans in shape to be worked out at the next interpost council meeting.

Redlands will probably send a dozen men, perhaps more, to the convention. Last year the railroads offered rates of one cent a mile to the convention city and it is expected that the same rates will be allowed this year. Also the men hope to have the sleepers on a siding at New Orleans so that they can sleep there at night.

The convention is to last for five days and the men will need to be away only about eight days, it is said.

DEMAND LOWER
RATE FOR ICESay Imperial Valley People Are Gouged

CALEXICO, July 21.—Asserting that Imperial Valley people are paying almost double what they should pay for ice, the Imperial Valley Chamber of Commerce yesterday started a movement to carry the fight for reduction of rates to the Railroad Commission if necessary. This allegation on the part of the Calexico Chamber bids fair to create a fight of general interest all over the county and the chamber is urging all residents of the valley to throw their support into the fight for reduced rates, since the same rates on these commodities obtain in all cities in the valley.

The plan of action suggested by the chamber is that the matter be laid before the associated chambers of the valley at its monthly meeting in El Centro. Both commodities will be considered together, as it is well known that the Helton Power Company and the Imperial Ice Development Company are owned and controlled by the same people.

The question was brought up at a luncheon held by the chamber by City Clerk Stainforth, who stated that recently he had received numerous complaints of the excessive rates of the two companies. Other speakers expressed the belief that the Helton Power Company could double its business in the valley if it would reduce the rates of electricity so that people could use electrical cooking equipment.

A committee composed of J. G. Scott, chairman; C. E. Markey and R. E. Burrows of Calexico, was appointed to investigate the ice situation and get comparative rates. There is some difference of opinion as to whether the valley should take the matter of electric rates up directly with the power company or take the complaint directly to the Railroad Commission. The matter will probably be decided at the associated chambers meeting.

POSTPONE DATE OF
INDIAN PAGEANT

REDONDO BEACH, July 21.—The inter-community production of the Indian Pageant, announced for August 13, has been indefinitely postponed. It was intended to produce the play at Moosa, the beach, but the date was postponed because of the help of a cast made up of citizens of Redondo, Redlands and Fallbrook. Illness and other obstacles have prevented themselves so that it is impossible to produce the play on the date now set. The postponement is indefinite, but the pageant will be produced later in the summer.

(BY A. P. MORTIMER)

ST. LOUIS, July 21.—Fournier's home run with the bases full in the eighth gave the Cardinals a 4 to 1 victory over Boston here today. It was the third straight for St. Louis over the Braves and moved them to within .004 of the league leading Giants, who lost to Cincinnati. Prior to the eighth Watson had hurled sensationally. The Braves hit Doak, Barfoot and North safely fourteen times and drove six bases on balls, but could score only once. They had twelve men left on bases. Score:

Something Nice in a Bathing Suit

The Importance of Form in Swimming

It is apparently being demonstrated herewith by this fair nymph, who is one-sixth of the six chicks with Harry Carroll's act at the Orpheum. She is showing among other things—her versatility by doing the crawl stroke with her arms and the toddle or something with her knees.

Vernon Spencer, outfielder signed by the Angels, probably would help the club.

The writer traveled with Spencer in the big league for the better part of one season, and was of the opinion at that time that he would have stuck with a number of big-league clubs not actually in the running. But as the Giants were running one, two, three that year, McGraw could not do much experimenting, and Spencer did not play steadily enough to give a line on his real ability. Some who had seen the two in the minors declared him a better prospect than Pat Duncan, Cincinnati outfielder, in their championship days.

Spencer was purchased from Toronto, and cost Stoneham and McGraw around $25,000. Subsequently he was shipped to Indianapolis, where he broke a leg. He lives just outside Detroit, his family appears to be well heeled and sports a platoon of automobiles for private use.

I have always believed that it was a hair episode that put Spencer out of the big league. It was during the small western trip of the Giants in 1920. One evening at dinner while engaged with a dish of stewed spinach, Spencer got his fork tangled in a hair, which had entwined itself among the vegetables.

And it was no ordinary hair. It was neither light nor dark. It may have been dark once, but now was just turning gray. Spencer started to unravel it. The finish found him pulling the hair out hand over hand. It must have been a yard long. The young athlete all but died on the spot. He didn't finish that meal, and he tackled no meals the following day. When he did finally get up courage to face a lay-out of grub, it wasn't with much success. Eating had lost its charm. No doubt he has recovered by this time, but he never was quite the same athlete again that season. Lost weight, fell off in his hitting and weakened in his fielding. Every meal was a desperate venture, and every mouthful a horrible struggle.

Now that Spencer has come to the Angels instructions will be given to have all spinach gone over with a fine comb and the loose hair removed before being served. Welcome to our sanitary city.

President Patrick, although mastering baseball rapidly and adjusting himself to its many queer angles, didn't forget to bring his sound business training and level-headed ideas into the game with him. He is against the forfeiture of franchise—that is, taking a man's franchise away from him through a majority vote because of some real or fancied grievance. He maintains that a baseball franchise is equivalent to a piece of property, and is a vested right. More men of the Patrick type in baseball would give it greater stability.

A peculiar and possibly unprecedented angle might have developed on the Portland club had Kiepper and Brewster adopted the first proposition made by the McCredies when the latter were selling out.

In short, Judge McCredie's position was to sell the club to Kiepper and Brewster for a specified sum, but retain a half-interest in Pilleto and Johnson, who were to be sold. However, the purchasers insisted on a straight cash deal with no strings.

This was largely a matter of business with them, and at the time they hardly realized what complications might have arisen. When Pilleto and Johnson were sold to the new owners they received $25,000 and eight players. Had the McCredies had a half-interest in Pilleto and Johnson, they would now have a half-interest in eight Portland players, which would be equivalent to owning a good part of the Portland team.

Kiepper lost rather heavily as backer of the Tacoma team in the Pacific International League, which recently blew. On the last day he wrote a check for more than $1200 in final settlement with the players, and this represented only a small portion of his total losses.

Vernon Blenkiron's father, who accompanied the youngster to that circuit, said he saw them play to only $90 in Tacoma one day. Visiting team was guaranteed $100. Subtract $100 from $90, not to mention salaries, hotel bills and transportation, and you have nothing left for the home club except a large deficit.

Bob Conner, scout for the New York Americans, explains the position of Johnny Mitchell, former Vernon shortstop.

"Mitchell is simply warming the bench for us month after month, and yet he is as vital as any of the regular cogs in the machine," said Conner. "Your club is no stronger than its reserve strength, and Mitchell is part of that strength. Possibly in one way he was unfortunate in not getting with a club where he could play regularly. In another way he was fortunate in stepping into a slice of world-series money."

There are a lot of major-league players who would swap places with Mitchell on the latter proposition alone.

SERAPHS SOAK TIGERS AGAIN

scored on French's out. McAuley to Bandow Griggs. Sawyer had to be satisfied with three swings, although he seemed willing to try one more.

The Angels engaged in one of those spurts in the fifth in which they have recently become addicted. Same netted three runs, and gave the game appearance of swollen cheeks on one side. The plate proved too slushy for Wheeler in the fifth. He passed Carroll and McCabe right off the reel. Lindmore sacrificed. Walker and French were resumed, a pass to Baldwin giving the bases a complete cargo.

DOES THE WORK Hughes brought two-thirds of this cargo safely to port. He smashed a single between short and third, Carroll and McCabe clattering over the top and taking third. Killerer pulled a surprise. Do you think I haven't seen you? Do you think that I'm not suffering now? Don't you know that I'm tearing my heart out by the roots to send you away? My life will be a life without you. Do you think I haven't realized what an infinitely damned brute I've been? I don't love you when I took you. I only wanted to satisfy the beast in me. And I was glad that you were French. I could make you suffer as an Englishman made my mother suffer. I so loathed the whole race. I have been mad all my life. I think—up till now I thought I didn't care until the night I heard that Abraham Amair had got you, and then I knew that if anything happened to you the light of my life was out, and that I would only wait to kill him before I killed myself.

Hughes came within six feet of driving in another run in the eighth. It was his first attempt, and he tried for the plate on Tom's single to right. But it was a sharp hit, which, with High's clean field, sent Hughes back and the ball was nailed two jumps within home and fence.

Bodie battled for Hawks in the eighth. It was his first attempt, and he tried for the plate on Tom's single to right. But it was a sharp hit, which, with High's clean field, sent Hughes back and the ball was nailed two jumps within home and fence.
